

August 27, 1964

Mr. John W. Neal,
Executive Administrator
Chicago Medical Society
310 South Michigan Avenue
Chicago 4, Illinois

Dear Mr. Neal:

Would you please put the following note under news in "Chicago Medicine": Leonidas H. Berry, M.D., F.A.C.P., former assistant clinical professor of medicine, University of Illinois, and presently professor of gastroscopy and gastroenterology, Cook County Post-Graduate School, and senior attending physician at Michael Reese and Provident Hospitals, was elected president-elect of the National Medical Association during its sixty-ninth annual convention in Washington, D. C. August 2-7, 1964.

This, approximately 5,000, predominantly Negro organization was organized in 1895.

Sincerely,

Leonidas H. Berry, M.D.
