Dear Worth:

I should have written this letter some time ago, but I have not felt too well and I took a vacation for a rest, and I am now just getting back to reduced activities.

I am very glad that you caught the error with reference to the placement of the photographs in your monograph. I had exactly the same thing to happen in one of my publications. I suppose that it can easily happen with printers' assistants, and I find that there is only one answer to the problem - correction; that is, to handle it just as you did. I think that there are no further corrections to be made as far as I can see, and I will leave the final double-check to you and the publishers.

I do not recall whether you attend the College of Gastroenterology meetings; at any rate, I will not attend their meeting in Montreal this year. I trust that I may see you at the May meeting of A.S.G.E. I think I am close to being the oldest active member in that society, and I do not plan to attempt any further reading of papers or writing after our current series of monographs have been completed.

Hoping to see you in the not-too-distant future, and with many thanks for your cooperation in our joint effort, I remain,

Sincerely yours,

Leonidas H. Berry, M.D.
