Dear Dr. Heinkel:

I had hoped to have heard from you by now. I trust that your monograph is near completion. The sponsors are asking for all of the contributing monographs. My own contribution has been in press for some time.

Please read my original letter very carefully, so that you can follow the format very closely. I do recall that you mentioned describing your technique for teaching Endoscopy. We had hoped to stay clear of descriptions of techniques and general discussions of pathology and stick closely to the concept of clinical evaluations and management concepts with the use of case histories and some very good color reproductions for each monograph. The sponsors are now considering putting all of the monographs into one hardback book after each has been released separately. I hope that this can be brought about.

Please let me hear from you at your very earliest convenience, letting me know how soon you will be able to get your manuscript in. I hope that you are in the very best health and with my very sincere regards to you and the madam, I remain

Yours very truly,

Leonidas H. Berry, M.D.
