

Date_

Class Period _

Transcript of "A funeral oration on the death of George Washington"

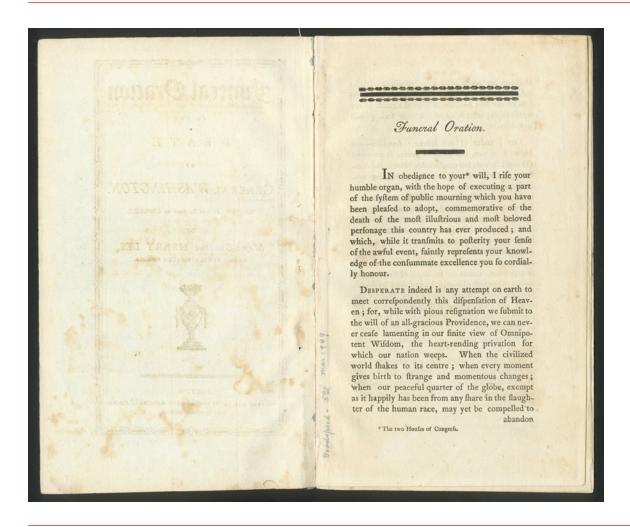

The front page of a pamphlet entitled: "A funeral oration on the death of George Washington" by Major General Henry Lee

Funeral Oration on the Death of General Washington. Delivered, at the Request of CONGRESS, BY Major-General Henry Lee, Member of Congress fromVirginia. Boston: Printed for Joseph Nancrede And Manning & Lorining. Sold by them respectively.

Class Period _

Date

[Blank left page] RIGHT PAGE reads:

"Funeral Oration.

In obedience to your will, I rise, your humble organ, with the hope of executing a part of the system of public mourning which you have been pleased to adopt, commemorative of the death of the most illustrious and most beloved personage this country has ever produced; and which, while it transmits to posterity your sense of the awful event, faintly represents your knowledge of the consummate excellence you so cordially honor.

Desperate indeed is any attempt on earth to meet correspondingly this dispensation of Heaven; for, while with pious resignation we submit to the will of an all-gracious Providence, we can never cease lamenting, in our 'finite view of Omnipotent Wisdom, the heart-rending privation for which our nation weeps. When the civilized world shakes to its centre; when every moment gives birth to strange and momentous changes; when our peaceful quarter of the globe, exempt as it happily has been from any share in the slaughter of the human race, may yet be compelled to [abandon]"

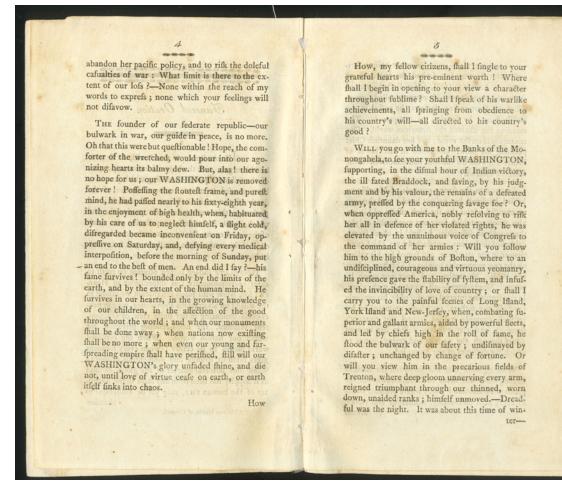

Student Name _

Class Period _

Date

PAGE 4, on the left reads:

"abandon her pacific policy, and to risk the doleful casualties of war: What limit is there to the extent of our loss?—None within the reach of my words to express; none which your feelings will not disavow.

The founder of our federate republic—our bulwark in war, our guide in peace, is no more! Oh, that this were but questionable! Hope, the comforter of the wretched, would pour into our agonizing hearts its balmy dew. But, alas! there is no hope for us; our WASHINGTON is removed forever! Possessing the stoutest frame and purest mind, he had passed nearly to his sixty-eighth year, in the enjoyment of high health, when, habituated by his care of us to neglect himself, a slight cold, disregarded, became inconvenient on Friday, oppressive on Saturday, and, defying every medical interposition, before the morning of Sunday, put an end to the best of men. An end, did I say?—His fame survives! bounded only by the limits of the earth, and by the extent of the human mind. He survives in our hearts-in the growing knowledge of our children, in the affection of the good throughout the world; and when our monuments shall be done away; when nations now existing shall be no more; when even our young and farspreading empire shall have perished; still will our WASHINGTON's glory unfaded shine, and die not, until love of virtue cease on earth, or earth itself sinks into chaos."

Student Name _
Date
Class Period

PAGE 5, on the right reads:

"How, my fellow-citizens, shall I single to your grateful hearts his pre-eminent worth! Where shall I begin, in opening to your view a character throughout sublime? Shall I speak of his warlike achievements, all springing from obedience to his country's will—all directed to his country's good?

Will you go with me to the Banks of the Monongahela, to see your youthful WASHINGTON supporting, in the dismal hour of Indian victory, the ill-fated Braddock, and saving, by his judgment and by his valor, the remains of a defeated army, pressed by the conquering savage foe? Or, when oppressed America, nobly resolving to risk her all in defense of her violated rights, he was elevated by the unanimous voice of Congress to the command of her armies: Will you follow him to the high grounds of Boston, where, to an undisciplined, courageous and virtuous yeomanry, his presence gave the stability of system, and infused the invincibility of love of country; or shall I carry you to the painful scenes of Long Island, York Island and New-Jersey, when, combating superior and gallant armies, aided by powerful fleets, and led by chiefs high in the roll of fame, he stood the bulwark of our safety; undismayed by disaster, unchanged by change of fortune. Or will you view him in the precarious fields of Trenton, where deep gloom, unnerving every arm, reigned triumphant through our thinned, worn down, unaided ranks; himself unmoved.—Dreadful was the night. It was about this time of win[ter—]"

Student Name _

Class Period _

Date

ter—the florm raged—the Delaware rolling furioufly with floating ice, forbad the approach of man. WASHINGTON, felf collected, viewed the tremendous fcene—his country called ; unappalled by furrounding dangers, he paffed to the hoftlie fhore ; he fought ; he conquered. The morning fun cheered the American world. Our country rofe on the event ; and her dauntle's Chief purfuing his blow, completed in the lawns of Princeton, what his vaft foul had conceived on the fhores of Delaware.

6

THENCE to the ftrong grounds of Morristown he led his fmall but gallant band ; and through an eventful winter, by the high efforts of his genius, whofe matchlefs force was meafurable only by the growth of difficulties, he held in check formidable hoftile legions, conducted by a chief experienced in the art of war, and famed for his valour on the ever memorable heights of Abraham, where fell Wolfe, Montcalm, and fince our much lamented Montgomery-all covered with glory. In this fortunate interval, produced by his mafterly conduct, our fathers, ourfelves, animated by his refiftlefs example, rallied around our country's ftandard, and continued to follow her beloved, Chief through the various and trying fcenes to which the deftinies of our union led.

Who is there that has forgotten the vales of Brandywine—the fields of Germantown—or the plains of Monmouth? Every where prefent, wants of every kind obftructing, numerous and valiant armies armies encountering, himfelf a hoft, he affuaged our fufferings, limited our privations, and upheld our tottering Republic. Shall I difplay to you the fpread of, the fire of his foul, by rehearing the praifes of the Hero of Saratoga, and his much lov'd compeer of the Carolinas? No; our WASHING TON wears not borrowed glory: To Gates—to Greene, he gave without referve the applaufe due to their eminent merit; and long may the Chiefs of Saratoga, and of Eutaws, receive the grateful refpect of a grateful people.

MOVING in his own orbit, he imparted heat and light to his moft diftant fatellites; and combining the phyfical and moral force of all within his fphere, with irrefiftible weight he took his courfe, commiferating folly, difdaining vice, difmaying treafon, and invigorating defpondency; until the aufpicious hour arrived, when, united with the intrepid forces of a potent and magnanimous ally, he brought to fubmiffion the fince conquerer of India; thus finifhing his long career of military glory with a luftre correfponding to his great name, and in this his laft act of war affixing the feal of fate to our nation's birth.

To the horrid din of battle fweet peace fucceeded; and our virtuous Chief, mindful only of the common good, in a moment tempting perfonal aggrandizement, hufhed the difcontents of growing fedition; and, furrendering his power into the hands from which he had received it, converted his fword into a ploughfhare, teaching an admiring

PAGE 6, on the left reads:

"[win]ter—the storm raged—the Delaware, rolling furiously with floating ice, forbade the approach of man. WASHINGTON, self collected, viewed the tremendous scene—His country called; unappalled by surrounding dangers, he passed to the hostile shore; he fought; he conquered. The morning sun cheered the American world. Our country rose on the event; and her dauntless Chief pursuing his blow, completed in the lawns of Princeton, what his vast soul had conceived on the shores of Delaware.

Thence to the strong grounds of Morristown he led his small but gallant band; and through an eventful winter, by the high efforts of his genius, whose matchless force was measurable only by the growth of difficulties, he held in check formidable hostile legions, conducted by a chief experienced in the art of war, and famed for his valor on the ever memorable heights of Abraham, where fell Wolfe, Montcalm, and since our much lamented Montgomery—all covered with glory. In this fortunate interval, produced by his masterly conduct, our fathers, ourselves, animated by his resistless example, rallied around our country's standard, and continued to follow her beloved Chief through the various and trying scenes to which the destinies of our union led.

Student Name _
Date
Class Period

Who is there that has forgotten the vales of Brandywine—the fields of Germantown—or the plains of Monmouth? Everywhere present, wants of every kind obstructing, numerous and valiant [armies]"

PAGE 7, on the right reads:

"armies encountering, himself a host, he assuaged our sufferings, limited our privations, and upheld our tottering Republic. Shall I display to you the spread of the fire of his soul, by rehearsing the praises of the hero of Saratoga, and his much lov'd compeer of the Carolinas? No; our WASHINGTON wears not borrowed glory. To Gates—to Greene, he gave without reserve the applause due to their eminent merit; and long may the Chiefs of Saratoga, and of Eutaws, receive the grateful respect of a grateful people.

Moving in his own orbit, he imparted heat and light to his most distant satellites; and combining the physical and moral force of all within his sphere, with irresistible weight he took his course, commiserating folly, disdaining vice, dismaying treason, and invigorating despondency; until the auspicious hour arrived, when, united with the intrepid forces of a potent and magnanimous ally, he brought to submission the since conqueror of India; thus finishing his long career of military glory with a lustre corresponding to his great name, and in this his last act of war affixing the seal of fate to our nation's birth.

To the horrid din of battle sweet peace succeeded; and our virtuous Chief, mindful only of the common good, in a moment tempting personal aggrandizement, hushed the discontents of growing sedition; and, surrendering his power into the hands from which he had received it, converted his sword into a ploughshare; teaching an admir[ing]"

Student Name _

Class Period _

Date

8 ing world that to be truly great, you muft be truly good.

Was I to ftop here, the picture would be incomplete, and the tafk impofed unfinifhed— Great as was our WASHINGTON in war, and as much as did that greatnefs contribute to produce the American Republic, it is not in war alone his pre-eminence flands confipicuous: His various talents combining all the capacities of a flatefman with thofe of a foldier, fitted him alike to guide the councils and the armies of our nation. Scarcely had he refted from his martial toils, while his invaluable parental advice was fill founding in our ears, when he who had been our fhield and our fword, was called forth to act a lefs fplendid but more important part.

POSSESSING a clear and penetrating mind, a ftrong and found judgment, calmnefs and temper for deliberation, with invincible firmnefs and perfeverance in refolutions maturely formed, drawing information from all, acting from himfelf, with incorruptible integrity and unvarying patriotifm : his own fuperiority and the public confidence alike marked him as the man defigned by heaven to lead in the great political as well as military events which have diftinguifhed the era of his life.

THE finger of an over-ruling Providence, pointing at WASHINGTON, was neither miftaken nor unobferved; when, to realife the vaft hopes to which our revolution had given birth, a change of political fyftem became indifpenfable. How novel, how grand the fpectacle! Independent States firetched over an immenfe territory, and known only by common difficulty, clinging to their union as the rock of their fafety, deciding by frank comparifon of their relative condition, to rear on that rock, under the guidance of reafon, a common government through whofe commanding protection, liberty and order, with their long train of bleffings fhould be fafe to themfelves, and the fure inheritance of their pofterity.

Q

THIS arduous tafk devolved on citizens felected by the people, from knowledge of their wifdom and confidence in their virtue. In this auguft affembly of fages and of patriots, WASHING-TON of courfe was found; and, as if acknowledged to be moft wife, where all were wife, with one voice he was declared their Chief. How well he merited this rare diflinction, how faithful were the labours of himfelf and his compatriots, the work of their hands and our union, ftrength and profperity, the fruits of that work, beft atteft.

Bur to have effentially aided in prefenting to his country this confummation of her hopes, neither fatisfied the claims of his fellow-citizens on his talents, nor thofe duties which the poffeffion of thofe talents impofed. Heaven had not infufed into his mind fuch an uncommon fhate of its etherial fpirit to remain unemployed, nor beflowed on him his genius unaccompanied with the corresponding duty of devoting it to the common good. To have framed a conftitution, was fhew-B ing

PAGE 8, on the left reads:

"[admir]ing world that to be truly great, you must be truly good.

Was I to stop here, the picture would be incomplete, and the task imposed unfinished—Great as was our WASHINGTON in war, and as much as did that greatness contribute to produce the American Republic, it is not in war alone his pre-eminence stands conspicuous: His various talents, combining all the capacities of a statesman with those of a soldier, fitted him alike to guide the councils and the armies of our nation. Scarcely had he rested from his martial toils, while his invaluable parental advice was still sounding in our ears, when he who had been our shield and our sword, was called forth to act a less splendid but more important part.

Possessing a clear and penetrating mind, a strong and sound judgment, calmness and temper for deliberation, with invincible firmness and perseverance in resolutions maturely formed, drawing information from all; acting from himself, with incorruptible integrity and unvarying patriotism: his own superiority and the public confidence alike marked him as the man designed by heaven

Student Name
Date
Class Period

to lead in the great political as well as military events which have distinguished the era of his life.

The finger of an over-ruling Providence, pointing at WASHINGTON, was neither mistaken nor unobserved; when, to realize the vast hopes to which our revolution had given birth, a change of political system became indispensable.

[How]"

PAGE 9, on the right reads:

"How novel, how grand the spectacle! Independent States stretched over an immense territory, and known only by common difficulty, clinging to their union as the rock of their safety; deciding, by frank comparison of their relative condition, to rear on that rock, under the guidance of reason, a common government, through whose commanding protection, liberty and order, with their long train of blessings should be safe to themselves, and the sure inheritance of their posterity.

This arduous task devolved on citizens selected by the people, from knowledge of their wisdom and confidence in their virtue. In this august assembly of sages and of patriots, WASHINGTON of course was found; and, as if acknowledged to be most wise, where all were wise, with one voice he was declared their Chief. How well he merited this rare distinction, how faithful were the labors of him-self and his compatriots, the work of their hands, and our union, strength and prosperity, the fruits of that work, best attest.

But to have essentially aided in presenting to his country this consummation of our hopes, neither satisfied the claims of his fellow-citizens on his talents, nor those duties which the possession of those talents imposed. Heaven had not infused into his mind such an uncommon share of its ethereal spirit to remain unemployed, nor bestowed on him his genius unaccompanied with the corresponding duty of devoting it to the common good. To have framed a Constitution, was show[ing]"

Student Name _

Class Period .

Date

ing only, without realizing, the general happinefs. This great work remained to be done ; and America, stedfast in her preference, with one voice fummoned her beloved WASHINGTON, unpractifed as he was in the duties of civil adminiftration, to execute this last act in the completion of the national felicity. Obedient to her call, he affumed the high office with that felf-diftruft peculiar to his innate modefty, the conftant attendant of pre-eminent virtue. What was the burft of joy through our anxious land on this exhilerating event is known to us all. The aged, the young, the brave, the fair, rivalled each other in demonstrations of their gratitude ; and this high wrought, delightful fcene was heightened in its effect, by the fingular contest between the zeal of the bestowers and the avoidance of the receiver of the honours bestowed. Commencing his administration, what heart is not charmed with the recollection of the pure and wife principles announced by himfelf, as the bafis of his political life. He beft underftood the indiffoluble union between virtue and happinefs, between duty and advantage, between the genuine maxims of an honeft and magnanimous policy, and the folid rewards of public profperity and individual felicity; watching with an equal and comprehenfive eye over this great affemblage of communities and interefts, he laid the foundations of our national policy in the unerring, immutable principles of morality, bafed on religion, exemplifying the preeminence of a free government, by all the attributes butes which win the affections of its citizens, or command the respect of the world.

10

11

" O fortunatos nimium, fua fi bona norint !"

LEADING through the complicated difficulties produced by previous obligations and conflicting interefts, feconded by fucceeding Houfes of Congrefs, enlightened and patriotic, he furmounted all original obfruction, and brightened the path of our national felicity.

THE Prefidential term expiring, his folicitude to exchange exaltation for humility returned with a force increafed with increafe of age ; and he had prepared his farewell address to his countrymen, proclaiming his intention, when the united interpolition of all around him, enforced by the eventful profpects of the epoch, produced a further facrifice of inclination to duty. The election of Prefident followed, and WASHINGTON, by the unanimous vote of the nation, was called to refume the Chief Magistracy. What a wonderful fixture of confidence ! Which attracts most our admiration, a people fo correct, or a citizen combining an affemblage of talents forbidding rivalry, and ftifling even envy itfelf ? Such a nation ought to be happy, fuch a chief muft be forever revered.

WAR, long menaced by the Indian tribes, now broke out; and the terrible conflict, deluging Europe with blood, began to thed its baneful influence over our happy land. To the firft, outflretching his invincible arm, under the orders of the gallant Wayne, the American Eagle foared triumphant

PAGE 10, on the left reads:

"[show]ing only, without realizing, the general happiness. This great work remained to be done; and America, steadfast in her preference, with one voice summoned her beloved WASHINGTON, unpracticed as he was in the duties of civil administration, to execute this last act in the completion of the national felicity. Obedient to her call, he assumed the high office with that self-distrust peculiar to his innate modesty, the constant attendant of pre-eminent virtue. What was the burst of joy through our anxious land on this exhilarating event is known to us all. The aged, the young, the brave, the fair, rivaled each other in demonstrations of their gratitude; and this high wrought, delightful scene was heightened in its effect by the singular contest between the zeal of the bestowers and the avoidance of the receiver of the honors bestowed. Commencing his administration, what heart is not charmed with the recollection of the pure and wise principles announced by himself, as the basis of his political life. He best understood the indissoluble union between virtue and happiness, between duty and advantage, between the genuine maxims of an honest and magnanimous policy, and the solid rewards of public prosperity and individual felicity; watching with an equal and comprehensive eye over this great assemblage of communities and interests, he laid the foundations of our national policy in the unerring, immutable principles of morality, based on religion, exemplifying the pre-eminence of a free government, by all the attri-[butes]"

Student Name
Date
Class Period

PAGE 11, on the right reads:

"[attri]butes which win the affections of its citizens, or command the respect of the world.

"O fortunatos nimium, sua fl bona norint !"

Leading through the complicated difficulties produced by previous obligations and conflicting interests, seconded by succeeding Houses of Congress, enlightened and patriotic, he surmounted all original obstruction, and brightened the path of our national felicity.

The Presidential term expiring, his solicitude to exchange exaltation for humility returned with a force increased with increase of age; and he had prepared his farewell address to his countrymen, proclaiming his intention, when the united interposition of all around him, enforced by the eventful prospects of the epoch, produced a further sacrifice of inclination to duty. The election of President followed; and WASHINGTON, by the unanimous vote of the nation, was called to resume the Chief Magistracy. What a wonderful fixture of confidence! Which attracts most our admiration, a people so correct, or a citizen combining an assemblage of talents forbidding rivalry, and stifling even envy itself? Such a nation ought to be happy; such a chief must be forever revered.

War, long menaced by the Indian tribes, now broke out; and the terrible conflict, deluging Europe with blood, began to shed its baneful influence over our happy land. To the first, outstretching his invincible arm, under the orders of the gallant Wayne, the American eagle soared [triumphant]"

Student Name _

Class Period _

Date

12

triumphant through diftant forefts. Peace followed victory; and the melioration of the condition of the enemy, followed peace. Godlike virtue, which uplifts even the fubdued favage.

To the fecond he oppofed himfelf. New and delicate was the conjuncture, and great was the ftake. Soon did his penetrating mind differn and feize the only courfe, continuing to us all the felicity enjoyed. He iffued his proclamation of neutrality. This index to his whole fubfequent conduct, was fanctioned by the approbation of both Houfes of Congrefs, and by the approving voice of the people.

To this fublime policy he inviolably adhered, unmoved by foreign intrufion, unfhaken by domeftic turbulence,

> " Julium et tenacem propoliti virum, "Non civium ardor prava jubentium, "Non vultus inftantis tyranni, "Mente quatit folida."

MAINTAINING his pacific fyftem at the expense of no duty, America, faithful to herfelf, and unflained in her honour, continued to enjoy the delights of peace, while afflicted Europe mourns in every quarter under the accumulated miferies of an unexampled war; miferies in which our happy country muft have fhared, had not our pre-eminent WASHINGTON been as firm in council as he was brave in the field.

PURSUING

13

PURSUING fieldfally his courfe, he held fafe the public happinefs, preventing foreign war, and quelling internal difcord, till the revolving period of a third election approached, when he executed his interrupted but inextinguishable defire of returning to the humble walks of private life.

THE promulgation of his fixed refolution, ftopped the anxious wifhes of an affectionate people, from adding a third unanimous teffimonial of their unabated confidence in the man fo long enthround in their hearts. When before was affection like this exhibited on earth ?—Turn over the records of ancient Greece—Review the annals of mighty Rome—Examine the volumes of modern Europe ; you fearch in vain. AMERICA and her WASH-INGTON only afford the dignified exemplification.

THE illuftrious perfonage called by the national voice in fucceffion to the arduous office of guiding a free people, had new difficulties to encounter : The amicable effort of fettling our difficulties with France, begun by WASHINGTON, and purfued by his fucceffor in virtue as in flation, proving abortive, America took measures of felf-defence. No fooner was the public mind roufed by a profpect of danger, than every eye was turned to the friend of all, though fecluded from public view, and grey in public fervice. The virtuous veteran, following his plough,* received the unexpected furmons

* General Washinoron, though opulent, gave much of his time to practical agriculture.

PAGE 12, on the left reads:

"triumphant through distant forests. Peace followed victory; and the melioration of the condition of the enemy, followed peace. Godlike virtue, which uplifts even the subdued savage.

To the second he opposed himself. New and delicate was the conjuncture, and great was the stake. Soon did his penetrating mind discern and seize the only course, continuing to us all the felicity enjoyed. He issued his proclamation of neutrality. This index to his whole subsequent conduct, was sanctioned by the approbation of both Houses of Congress, and by the approving voice of the people.

To this sublime policy he inviolably adhered, unmoved by foreign intrusion, unshaken by domestic turbulence.

"Justum et tenacem propositi virum,

"Non civium ardor prava jubentium,

Student Name _
Date
Class Period

"Non vultus instantis tyranni,

"Mente quatit solida."

Maintaining his pacific system at the expense of no duty, America, faithful to herself, and unstained in her honor, continued to enjoy the delights of peace, while afflicted Europe mourns in every quarter under the accumulated miseries of an unexampled war; miseries in which our happy country must have shared, had not our pre-eminent WASHINGTON been as firm in council as he was brave in the field.

[Pursing]"

PAGE 13, on the right reads:

"Pursuing steadfastly his course, he held safe the public happiness, preventing foreign war, and quelling internal discord, till the revolving period of a third election approached, when he executed his interrupted but inextinguishable desire of returning to the humble walks of private life.

The promulgation of his fixed resolution, stopped the anxious wishes of an affectionate people, from adding a third unanimous testimonial of their unabated confidence in the man so long enthroned in their hearts. When before was affection like this exhibited on earth?—Turn over the records of ancient Greece—Review the annals of mighty Rome—Examine the volumes of modern Europe; you search in vain. America and her WASHINGTON only afford the dignified exemplification.

The illustrious personage called by the national voice in succession to the arduous office of guiding a free people, had new difficulties to encounter: The amicable effort of settling our difficulties with France, begun by WASHINGTON, and pursued by his successor in virtue as in station, proving abortive, America took measures of self-defense. No sooner was the public mind roused by a prospect of danger, than every eye was turned to the friend of all, though secluded from public view, and gray in public service. The virtuous veteran, following his plough, received the unexpected [summons]"

1

Student Name _

Class Period _

Date

14

fummons with mingled emotions of indignation at the unmerited ill-treatment of his country, and of a determination once more to rifk his all in her defence.

THE annunciation of thefe feelings, in his affecting letter to the Prefident, accepting the command of the army, concludes his official conduct.

FIRST in war, firft in peace, and firft in the hearts of his countrymen, he was fecond to none in the humble and endearing feenes of private life: Pious, juft, humane, temperate, and fincere; uniform, dignified, and commanding, his example was as edifying to all around him as were the effects of that example lafting.

To his equals he was condefcending; to his inferiors kind; and to the dear object of his affections exemplarily tender: Correct throughout, vice fhuddered in his prefence, and virtue always felt his foltering hand; the purity of his private character gave effulgence to his public virtues.

His laft fcene comported with the whole tenor of his life: Although in extreme pain, not a figh, not a groan efcaped him; and with undiflurbed ferenity he clofed his well fpent life. Such was the man America has loft! Such was the man for whom our nation mourns !

METHINKS I fee his august image, and hear, falling from his venerable lips, these deep finking words :

" CEASE,

" CEASE, Sons of AMERICA, lamenting our feparation : Go on, and confirm by your wifdom the fruits of our joint councils, joint efforts, and common dangers. Reverence religion ; diffuse knowledge throughout your land ; patronize the arts and fciences; let Liberty and Order be infeparable companions ; control party fpirit, the bane of free government ; observe good faith to, and cultivate peace with all nations ; fhut up every avenue to foreign influence ; contract rather than extend national connexion; rely on yourfelves only-Be American in thought and deed. Thus will you give immortality to that union, which was the conftant object of my terreftrial labours : Thus will you preferve undifturbed to the lateft posterity, the felicity of a people to me most dear; and thus will you fupply (if my happinefs is now aught to you) the only vacancy in the round of pure blifs high Heaven bestows."

15

PAGE 14, on the left reads:

"summons with mingled emotions of indignation at the unmerited ill-treatment of his country, and of a determination once more to risk his all in her defense.

The annunciation of these feelings, in his affecting letter to the President, accepting the command of the army, concludes his official conduct.

First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen, he was second to none in the humble and endearing scenes of private life: Pious, just, humane, temperate, and sincere; uniform, dignified, and commanding, his example was as edifying to all around him as were the effects of that example lasting.

To his equals he was condescending; to his inferiors kind; and to the dear object of his affections exemplarily tender: Correct throughout, vice shuddered in his presence, and virtue always felt his fostering hand; the purity of his private character gave effulgence to his public virtues.

Student Name
Date
Class Period

His last scene comported with the whole tenor of his life: Although in extreme pain, not a sigh, not a groan escaped him; and with undisturbed serenity he closed his well spent life. Such was the man America has lost! Such was the man for whom our nation mourns!

Methinks I see his august image, and hear, falling from his venerable lips, these deep sinking words: ["Cease,]"

PAGE 15, on the right reads:

""Cease, Sons of America, lamenting our separation: Go on, and confirm by your wisdom the fruits of our joint councils, joint efforts, and common dangers. Reverence religion; diffuse knowledge throughout your land; patronize the arts and sciences; let Liberty and Order be inseparable companions; control party spirit, the bane of free government; observe good faith to, and cultivate peace with all nations; shut up every avenue to foreign influence; contract rather than extend national connection; rely on yourselves only—Be American in thought and deed. Thus will you give immortality to that union, which was the constant object of my terrestrial labors: Thus will you preserve undisturbed to the latest posterity, the felicity of a people to me most dear; and thus will you supply (if my happiness is now aught to you) the only vacancy in the round of pure bliss high Heaven bestows.""

