We would respectfully call your attention to the new and beautiful cover of this book, which is a representation of seven characteristic types of ships or barks of ancient and modern times. The FIRST represents an ancient Phenician vessel, copied from a painting found in the ruins of Pompeii, one of the very first crafts that ever ventured out upon the ocean or sea beyond the sight of land, and it was in a boat similar to this that these bold navigators of ancient times explored the remotest corners of the then known world, penetrating as far as Ancient Britain (now England). The SECOND is a Roman war galley, a magnificent specimen of naval architecture, bearing sails and propelled sometimes by hundreds of large oars or sweeps, projecting from the sides, as shown in the illustration. The THIRD is a Felucca, used extensively in the Mediterranean and Southern Ocean; sails are lateen, and are constructed of rushes. The FOURTH is the Chinese junk, a unique and characteristic type of marine architecture. The FIFTH is a modern yacht under full sail, a sight probably familiar to all of us. The SIXTH, a modern bark under full sail, with fair wind, plowing through the water. The SEVENTH is a modern ocean steamship, the climax of engineering skill, the latest of which, the Oregon, called the Ocean Greyhound, performed the unparalleled feat of crossing from Queens-town to New York in six days, ten hours and ten minutes. Six years ago if the trip was made in eight or nine days, it was regarded as extraordinarily quick time, the distance being 2,861 miles.

The SEVEN BARKS to which we wish to call your attention, while similar in name to the foregoing, is of an entirely different character, and we would commend to your earnest perusal and careful consideration the contents of this book.

Eclipses for the Year 1885.

There will be four eclipses in 1885; two of the Sun, and two of the Moon, as follows:

I. An Annular Eclipse of the Sun, March 16, visible as a Partial Eclipse throughout the United States. The Annulus will be visible in the N.W., part, the path of the Annulus, passing near Helena and Boise City, and entering the Pacific near C. Mendocino, Cal.

II. A Partial Eclipse of the Moon, March 30, invisible in the United States.

III. A Total Eclipse of the Sun, September 8, invisible in the United States.

IV. A Total Eclipse of the Moon, September 29-30, visible throughout the United States.
On a bright morning in May, I took the boat at Coblenz bound up the river.

I was going to Weisbaden, a small town situated near the head of navigation, at the base of the mountains. After I had got myself well located on board, I noticed that many of the passengers were invalids. Upon inquiry I learned that they were going to Weisbaden to see a celebrated physician, who, by his great skill, had achieved a wonderful reputation throughout the German Empire for curing all manner of long standing and difficult diseases. I learned that the boat was more crowded than usual, because the next day was the physician's "Charity Day." He devoted one day in each week in treating the poor sick people free of all charge.

I, too, was on my way to Weisbaden to see this celebrated medical man, who was, without doubt, the most skillful in all Europe. But I was not sick.

Why was I going, then? you will ask. I will tell you. I had journeyed all the way from my home in America to see this great physician; to learn of him, if possible, his manner of preparing his Extract of Hydrangea, by means of which he was working such wondrous cures in difficult cases. The Hydrangea, prepared in the ordinary manner, possesses very remarkable healing virtues, but from what I had seen, this preparation possessed, in addition to its influence upon the kidneys and bladder, many other very excellent qualities.

I had used some of this Extract of Hydrangea in my practice in the City of New York, having procured it from one of my German patients, who had brought it with him when coming to America. To learn all about this great remedy, led me to leave my home for this far-off distant land. Well, in due time the boat reached Weisbaden. After securing lodgings at the inn, I started out to pay my respects to Franz Gauswein, the name of the celebrated physician, to whom I had brought letters of introduction. The fine old gentleman received me with great cordiality and kindness, that made me feel at home at once. He was a man of about seventy years of age. His countenance bore the marks of intelligence and honesty. In fact, he was one of Nature's noblemen. He invited me to dine the next day; and to dinner I went. After dinner I frankly told him my mission—what I had come all the way from America for.

"Well," said he, "you are so frank with me, I will be frank with you." We then went into the Laboratory, where he showed me the different processes which the Hydrangea went through to extract all its medical virtues. "Prepared in this way, the Hydrangea possesses five excellent qualities, beautifully and harmoniously combined, so as to have a most excellent effect upon the diseased conditions of mankind. The first is a gentle cathartic, moving the bowels without leaving in a costive state. The second, a positive alterative or deobstruent, changing the secretion of the kidneys, liver and other glands of the system to a normal or healthy condition. The third is a diaphoretic and diuretic, causing the skin and kidneys to carry off the impurities which Nature in her wisdom intended. The fourth is a peculiar expectorant, differing from all others I have ever known, by its gentle and healing properties. The fifth is a wonderful tonic, which the most sensitive stomach will bear without creating any disturbance. You will observe that with such properties combined in one remedy, we have a weapon that Giant Disease cannot face. It must beat a retreat. With this remedy I have achieved what reputation I have, and I assure you that I prefer it to all the uncertain remedies of Materia Medica. With it I am very successful in curing all manner of difficult diseases. Come with me to-morrow, and I will show you its workings on many obstinate cases."

How the Discovery was Made.

"I had been using the Hydrangea in my practice for years. One day I directed my student to prepare some Tincture with the Spirits of Wine.

A W[estern Pennsylvania man put $15,000 in bills in a wooden chest in his cellar. He would not trust his money to the banks. When he brought the chest to light a few days ago to count over his treasure, he found that the rats had burrowed through and through the chest until only a small fraction of the original package of bills was in a negotiable condition. Thus some people let disease burrow in their systems until hopeless mischief is done. Be wise and wide awake; and spy out the disease in time. The Seven Barks makes malarious diseases "vanish like snow upon the lips of the volcano."
By some mistake, he put distilled Acetic Acid upon the roots, instead of the Spirits of Wine. This I discovered a few days after, when examining it, and as I was about to throw it away, I thought how the Vinegar of Opium and the Vinegar of Bloodroot were valuable remedies; so I concluded to keep it awhile and test its virtues. I tried it cautiously upon several cases, and its effects were truly remarkable. One case in particular, where the disease (Rheumatism) had resisted all the treatment I had been able to devise, the effect was most wonderful indeed. Why, sir, the man had not walked for years—and, if you will believe me, that man was well in a month, and able to leap and run like a boy. Other cases equally strange are on my books, especially Dyspepsia, Chills and Fever and Liver Complaints. You remain with me, and I will show you beyond all doubt that I am not crazy on this point. You shall see for yourself."

I was so well impressed that I remained with FRANZ GAUSWEIN for twelve months, and learned all about the remedy and its operation on the diseases of mankind. He had told me how he had made the discovery, and many more particulars. I saw enough to satisfy me that all was really true, and made my arrangements to return home. In bidding my friend farewell, I felt sorrowful in parting with such a noble specimen of God's creation, as I felt it must be forever—because the gray locks that hung over his expanded brow told that his journey was approaching its end. But he will have his reward. In parting, I told him how thankful I was for all his kindness, when he said to me: "Now that I have told you all about this remedy, I will ask in return but one favor. It is this: You shall return to your home in America, and place this medicine within the reach of the sick and suffering of your land. There are very many of my countrymen who have made your country, beyond the ocean, their home for all time to come. There are, doubtless, many poor among them, whose (Continued on page 8.)
wants should be supplied at the lowest possible price.” We parted.

A few weeks brought me safely home to my native land, America, and I set about gathering the roots, to make ready to supply the wants of the people. The Hydrangea began to earn for itself a reputation.

Description of the Hydrangea.

It is a perennial shrub, sending upward numerous stalks from a candex or head, to the height of from three to five feet. The bark is rough, peeling off in layers, each layer being of a different color, probably giving origin to the name “Seven Barks.” The leaves and flowers much resemble those of the garden Hydrangea.

Before going to Europe I had placed some of this Hydrangea that I had obtained from my German friends in the hands of some eminent medical men, in order that it might be thoroughly tested.

The Liver

is also the seat of Calculi. Sometimes large stones get clogged in the passage from the gall bladder to the intestines; sometimes they remain in the gall bladder and the ducts leading to it. As a natural consequence, the digestion is impaired; the skin has a dark, sallow appearance; the bowels become at times alternately costive and loose; the healthy secretion of bile is interrupted. We all know how important it is to have the bile secreted from the blood. Many a broken-down constitution dates its downfall from calcareous deposits in portions of the liver. The pain in the right shoulder and left side, frequent palpitations of the heart, sour stomach, bitter taste in the mouth, nervousness, sick headache, frequently a dreadful cough, which has every appearance of confirmed Consumption—all have their origin here in the liver. (Note.—Many persons who suppose they have Consumption, have nothing but Dyspepsia.) The Seven Barks, taken regularly for a considerable time, will remove the cause of this derangement, and thus effect a cure. To cure any disease, we must remove the cause, and the work is done. [See Testimonials.]

Dyspepsia,
in nearly every form, has its origin in the condition of the system, and a prolonged use of the Seven Barks will remove the cause of the Dyspepsia, and restore digestion to its wonted healthy condition. [See Testimonials.]

Bizziness of the Head is caused by an impure condition of the blood, which has been produced by the improper secretions made by the great glands of the body—the Liver and Kidneys. They are the great WORKSHOPS of the human system. Correct these secretions by the use of the Seven Barks, and we effect a perfect cure. One-third of a teaspoonful, taken three times a day, instantly after eating, will effect a perfect cure.

Rheumatism
is caused by the calcareous deposits in and about the joints, fascia, and sometimes the heart. Sometimes joints become much enlarged, and out of proper shape, and, when opened, they have a chalk-like appearance. If this calculus was carried off from the system, through the liver and kidneys, we should have no Rheumatism. When we have Rheumatism, it will be removed and cured, if we use the Seven Barks freely for some time, so as to cause the liver and kidneys to do their work. The en-

LYMAN BROWN, 65 Warren St., New York City.

Dear Sir:—In reply to your favor of this date, I would say that I have retained over my counter twenty gross (2,880 bottles) SEVEN BARKS since June 14, 1882, which I consider an extraordinary sale. I would also state that I have not had a bottle returned, and that the medicine gives universal satisfaction. Yours very truly,

A. J. DITMAN,

Druggist, 10 Astor House, New York City.

DIDN'T BREAK HIS LEG,—"I'm so glad you have got back safe," said a Newport wife to her husband as she threw her arms about his neck and kissed him.

"Yes; and paid a quarter for a $3,000 accident ticket; and if anything had happened the train, and I should have got bruised or had an arm or leg broken, I would have got all that money, and if I should have been killed you would have got it."

"Ah, what a pity! But that's just our luck."
larged joints will be reduced to a natural size and shape, the pain and stiffness will gradually disappear, and thus the Rheumatism will have no resting place in the system; a cure is effected. [See Testimonials.]

Note.—Sometimes the Seven Barks will move off from the bowels. If it should purge too much, the dose should be diminished. It is essential that the bowels be kept freely open. Persons must regulate the dose according to the condition of the bowels.

The Urinary Organs.

The most prevailing disease at the present day in these organs is what is termed Irritable Bladder. Persons thus afflicted constantly desire to make water; they urinate often, and void but a small quantity at a time—this often attended with a scalding sensation. The persons so afflicted are indeed miserable; but in the Seven Barks they have a sure and certain remedy—there is no doubt about it. It will cure in every case. The dose should be about 10 drops in a tablespoonful of water, three times a day, after eating. I have hundreds of testimonials under this head, yet I annex but few for want of space.

Female Complaints.

Very many of these cases are diseases of the urinary organs, which, by sympathy, produce derangement of the womb and other female organs. Then the patient suffers with a discharge from the vagina, pains in the back and sides, sense of bearing down, nervous debility; with headache, hollow cheek and sunken eyes, with dark circles under them; want of appetite; sometimes stopping of menses; sometimes painful menstruation—oftentimes too frequent or profuse menstruation. This condition should not be neglected.

Nearly all of the female diseases will be removed by the use of the Seven Barks. It purifies the blood, and renders the skin glowing and healthy. When the skin is healthy it becomes soft and smooth, consequently beautiful. The charms of woman lay in a soft, smooth skin, with a healthy, blooming countenance. This medicine can be used with great advantage during pregnancy. [See Testimonials.]

Diseases of the Bowels.
The bowels, when healthy, carry off all useless and impure matter that can be carried off in solid form. Sometimes the main channel becomes overloaded with a coating like slime upon the mucous membrane. The bile is the natural-physic, if it is secreted in proper quantity and quality; when this is not the case, the Seven Barks will change this condition of the bowels, and thus remove costiveness. It will also remove diarrhea resulting from this coated condition of the mucous membrane. Inflammation of the Bowels, resulting from improper secretions, will yield to the use of the Seven Barks—as will all other derangements of the bowels.

Nervous Debility,
whether caused by the early squandering of the creative powers or by undue mental exertion, produces a train of exceedingly unpleasant symptoms, among which are the following: Sleepless nights, twitching of the muscles, trembling, desire to avoid company, spots before the eyes, a sinking, “all-gone” feeling, irritated by noise; hot flashes; and then cold, damp, clammy feet and hands; pain in the head, and over the eyes and temples; often a hard, dry, hacking cough, terminating in consumption. The Seven Barks will correct this nervous derangement, and restore the system to perfect health. [See Testimonials.]

Fever and Inflammations will be broken up by a few doses of the Seven Barks.

Piles and Costiveness will be removed and cured by the use of 10 to 20 drops of the Seven Barks three times a day, instantly after eating.

Heart Disease will be removed by the use of the Seven Barks. In all these diseases the bowels should be caused to move daily by the use of the Seven Barks. It will carry off all foul matter.

Worms cannot live in the bowels if they are kept cleansed of impurities. Take the Seven Barks three times (Continued on page 16.)
a day, and the worms will leave for “parts unknown.”

DISEASES OF THE SKIN.—Franz Ganswein said he never saw a remedy remove this class of diseases like the Seven Barks. It should be taken in 10 to 20 drop doses, three times a day, for a long time.

Dropsy will be cured, if the liver and kidneys perform their offices, properly. The Seven Barks will effect this, and a cure will be the natural result. [See Testimonials.]

SCORFULA, NURSING Sore MOUTH, SALT RHUEM, all disappear by the use of this wonderful remedy, because it purifies the blood and carries off all impurities.

For PIMPLES ON THE FACE. —Take the Seven Barks.

BROKEN DOWN CONSTITUTIONS should use the Seven Barks—because it will build them up, and make them like new beings.

Persons who wish to learn more about this remedy will see: United States Dispensatory; N. J. Medical Reporter, October, 1850, p. 44; American and Surgical Reporter, Philadelphia; American Journal of Pharmacy, article by Joseph Laidley, 1851. Since I returned to New York, I have distributed the Seven Barks among very many eminent physicians of the country, and I have received from them reports of cases where the medicine has been tested. I annex a few of such reports, but I have not space for all of them.

The time has gone by to sell a medicine, be it ever so good, without letting the people test for themselves in every locality, so the living witnesses can be seen in every locality; for one patient cured in a neighborhood is worth volumes of printed books to convince a too often deluded public. To this end the agent for the sale of the Seven Barks is authorized to warrant the medicine to do all that we state. The agent will refund the money for the first bottle where satisfaction is not realized.

Liver Complaint.

What is it to be Rich?—Vanderbilt owns up to being worth $149,000,000. The Duke of Westminster, who is the richest man in England, is said to be worth $200,000,000. No matter how rich a man is, he can't be happy unless he has a good digestion. The poorest man in Christendom can drive out Dyspepsia and Indigestion by the use of the Seven Barks, which will cost him but fifty cents a bottle.
tested some of the Seven Barks upon cases of Liver Complaint. He reports as follows:

“Jane Simpson, aged 27 years, had had deranged liver for several years; was much emaciated, weighing only 92 pounds; appetite poor, and what food she did eat gave her distress. ‘It felt like a load on her stomach,’ to use her own words. The tongue was coated through the middle; she had pain in the side and back almost constantly, with a distressing cough. She had been under the care of several physicians, but found no relief. Thinking it was a good case to test the Seven Barks, I administered it in 20-drop doses after each meal. Its effect was all that could be wished for—the pain was removed, the cough stopped, and the appetite improved. She commenced gaining almost immediately. I saw her a few weeks ago, and she was well, having gained 33 pounds of flesh.”

“Theodore J. Jamison (47 Union street), aged 47 years, had been confined to his house for nearly two years with distressed liver. He could eat nothing without great distress at pit of the stomach, followed by a faint ‘all-gone feeling,’ had a dry, hacking cough; skin cold and clammy, and almost constant headache. By the use of the Seven Barks this man has entirely recovered his former good health. I gave him 10 drops immediately after eating, three times per day.”

“Horace Smith, carpenter, aged 33 years, had been troubled with Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint for years; appetite very poor; food caused distressing sickness to stomach; pain in head and back almost constantly; sleep disturbed by unpleasant dreams; great nervous debility; unable to work at his trade; life felt a burden; spirits low. Commenced treatment 10 drops, and increased to 20 drops, night and morning. Improvement began at once, and he continued to gain in strength and spirits for about four weeks—when he called himself well and went to work.”

September, 1885.

July 4, 1841.

St. John, Hardin Co., Ky.

March 7, 1834.

Lyman Brown, St. Warren St., New York.

Dear Sir:—I have been troubled with Rhematism for some time, and could get no relief until I secured some of your Seven Barks. It relieved me at once, and I feel indebted to you for your great remedy.

Yours truly,

Richard M. Hicks.
good standing, reports the following case in the New York Medical Gazette, for October, 1863, page 218:

"Jacques L. Jones, night watchman, called on me to treat him for Chronic Rheumatism. He said he had been under the care of many eminent physicians and could get no relief. I thought it would be a good test for the SEVEN BARKS. His case yielded very rapidly to the remedy, so that he resumed his business in four or five weeks after commencing the treatment. I consider it an excellent remedy for Chronic Rheumatism."

Dyspepsia.

Those who have this distressing complaint will know how to appreciate a good and safe remedy. I have treated several cases of Dyspepsia in its most obstinate form with the SEVEN BARKS, and with the most satisfactory results. Thomas Sexton, clerk in dry goods business, had indigestion for upwards of two years. Heartburn, acid stomach, faint feeling at stomach, distress after eating, cold feet and hands, were among the attendant symptoms. I commenced the treatment by giving 20 drops of SEVEN BARKS immediately after each meal. The effect was most charming. The distress after eating disappeared at once. The distress at the pit of the stomach left in a very short time. His appetite improved. In three weeks he told me he was well.

WHAT CAUSES IMPURE BLOOD?

This is a question I am often asked, and now I will tell you. The tissues of the human frame are constantly undergoing a change—new muscles, new bones, new nerves, new eyes, new ears, new nails, are constantly being formed; and the old muscles, old bones, etc., are carried off through the blood. This old muscle, old bone, etc., are then thrown off through the skin, through the lungs, the urinary organs, and the bowels. This impurity is secreted from the blood by the liver, kidneys and skin. Now if the liver, kidneys and skin fail to secrete this impurity, this old muscle, this old bone, nerve, etc., which has performed its office, and become worn out and worthless, remains in the blood and makes it impure. This blood becomes stagnant and depraved—when a long train of diseases follow, making the life of man a burden to bear. Well, what is to be done? The course is plain. You have been shown the cause. Now, remove that cause, and pure blood is the natural result. How is this to be done? is asked. Wash, bathe and rub the skin, so that its pores will become open, and let the proper impurities escape. Next, make the liver strain its share of impurities from the blood as it passes through this great gland. This will produce a natural physic which will purge off through the bowels, and carry off the impurities thus secreted by the liver. And now, last, but not least in importance, correct the condition of the kidneys, so that they will secrete from the blood their share of impurity, and make it pass from the system through the urine. When you have done this, the lungs, by reason of their not being overworked, will be able to perform their share of this great renovating process, and the human frame resume its upright and beautiful form, as the God of nature made it. Now, the Seven Barks will correct these two great glands, the liver and the kidneys, and make their secretions healthy. The Seven Barks will be found to be the best blood medicine now extant. And if you will cleanse the skin by washing, bathing and rubbing, you will restore that to a healthy condition—when the lungs will fall into line, and keep step to the tune of health and happiness.

SHOW ME A PERSON WHO HAS NOT SOME KIND OF HUMOR.—Almost every person has a humor of some kind. It is a melancholy fact, but true, nevertheless. We see persons with a breaking out on the face or body, disfiguring the skin nature designed to be clear and smooth. This is caused by a humor in the blood. It should be eradicated, or the health will suffer. We see persons with swellings of some of the glands, often breaking out in open sores. This is the result (Continued on page 24.)
of humor in the blood, which should be cleansed. We often see persons who are dizzy, which, left alone, will terminate in a diseased brain. This, too, is humor, and it should by all means be expelled from the system. There are very many hidden diseases that physicians cannot find a name for, that are the effects of humors of the blood. Such diseases can only be cured by cleansing the blood from such humors. For instance, I will relate a case in point, which will illustrate what I am saying: Abbie Kittle, aged 22 years, had been ill four years. She had dark, sunken eyes, with dark lines under them; sallow countenance, loss of appetite, great nervous prostration, and constant tired feeling; food did not give any strength or flesh. There was no organic disease. Her physicians had told her that she was “all run down” —was going into a decline. She was all run down, and was truly miserable. She commenced the Seven Barks in small doses after each meal. In some two or three weeks she had an eruption come out all over her body. This, after a few weeks, disappeared, and left her really well. She gained strength, flesh and spirits. So you will see that this was a case of hidden humor in the blood.

Sir:—I am using the Seven Barks myself for Kidney Disease, and would not be without it for ten times its cost. Yours truly,

C. C. Gossett, Sr. partner of C. C. Gossett & Co.

Seven.—The number seven means perfect; and this was the use made of it by the ancients. There are seven days in the week. The candlestick of the Jewish Tabernacle had seven branches. The most perfect medicine in the world is the Seven Barks, as will be cheerfully attested by everybody who has ever used it.
Pleasant Oaks, Brunswick Co., Va.,
June 12, 1888.
Mr. Lyman Brown, 54 Warren St., New York.

Dear Sir:—My mother-in-law has had an old chronic disease for several years, sometimes being bedridden. She is now taking the sixth bottle of Seven Barks, and is mending fast; and it is to be hoped it will make a firm cure of her.

Since taking this medicine, she has been able to walk a mile. There is no doubt it is an excellent medicine.

Very respectfully yours,
W. J. S. Hobbs, Sr., Merchant.

Great Falls, Strafford Co., N. H., Feb. 15, 1888.

Lyman Brown.

Sir:—I sell Seven Barks more rapidly than any other medicine of its kind I have customers who buy it frequently, and have it in the family all the time. I have one customer who pronounces it “the best Blood medicine that was ever made.” Its selling and satisfying qualities are alike remarkable.

Yours truly,
R. M. Carleton, M. D., Apothecary.

1127 29th St., W. Wash., D. C.,
Sept. 21, 1882.

Lyman Brown, Esq.

Dear Sir:—Please ship me the enclosed order at once, as I am all sold out, and have parties waiting for the medicine.

It is certainly a wonderful Blood Purifier, as I have not heard of a single case in which it failed to give satisfaction.

I could get dozens of certificates from parties who have been permanently cured by the use of the Seven Barks.

Yours very truly,
J. Thos. Poutsch.

Mitchell, Volusia Co., Fla.,

Dear Sir:—When I first heard of the Seven Barks, my family were all under the doctor’s care. My wife was greatly troubled with Liver Complain, and my son had Rheumatism so bad in his feet that the joints seemed to be growing.

Since we have used your medicine, we are all enjoying good health, and I would not be without it for Ten Dollars a Bottle.

Yours truly,
Edn. John Wesley Chandler.

Mr. Lyman Brown:
Dec. 12, 1883.
Your medicine is the best panacea in this part of the country.
I have never heard of a case of Chills and Fever that it did not effectually break up.
Very respectfully,
LEMUEL B. HOWARD.
Union Deposit, Dauphin Co., Pa.,
Sept. 27, 1882.
Please send the Seven Barks soon as possible. It is doing well here.
It cured a case of Malarial Fever which baffled the skill of the best physician in town.
Yours,
S. G. STALEY.

Lyman Brown:
Newport, Del.,

I had a customer in Wilmington who suffered a long time with various diseases. When I recommended the Seven Barks to her she asked the doctor’s advice about taking it. He told her “it was good for the blood,” and that she could safely take it if it did her any good. She took several bottles, and said she had never found anything to help her blood so much.
Another person says, “it does good almost instantly after taking it.” Still another says, he has faith in it because it helps him.

Lyman Brown:
I sold a bottle of SEVEN BARKS to a man who had been afflicted with Neu-algia for nearly twenty years. He could only lie on one side. He came back to-day and bought two more bottles; and said he was so much better that he thought he would soon be entirely well.
In fact the SEVEN BARKS does good to all who use it.

Dear Sir:—I am happy to say that the SEVEN BARKS has already gained a reputation in this city and is still on the march. Many have returned to me after using one or two bottles, acknowledging with a grateful heart the wonderful change that has been effected in their health.
I feel encouraged to go on in the good work.
Respectfully yours,
J. C. MARSHALL.
MALARIA.

All persons living in malarious districts should use the SEVEN BARKS as a preventive as well as a cure. The disease, when developed, yields readily to the wholesome effects of the SEVEN BARKS. In stubborn cases the following will be found efficacious:

When the chill is felt coming on, put a half teaspoonful of the SEVEN BARKS in a wine-glass of wormwood tea, made strong as possible; drink this and go to bed at once, covering up well with the ordinary amount of bed-clothing; also, drink a glass or two of hot ginger tea. This will turn the chill into a sweat. Do this whenever you feel the approach of a chill, and it will be but a few days before all symptoms will have passed away. After this, it will only be found necessary to take an occasional dose of the SEVEN BARKS to serve as a sure preventive. [See Testimonials.]
