Historical Audiovisuals Duplication: Vendor Information

Films and videos from the National Library of Medicine's Historical Audiovisuals Collection may be duplicated if they are determined to be in the public domain, or if proof of permission from the copyright holder has been received by the History of Medicine Division.

Before any film or video can be copied, the User Agreement and the Restriction Notice must be completed and returned to us, one set of forms for each film. The forms may be mailed, faxed, or scanned and e-mailed.

The two laboratories approved to make film-to-film or film-to-video reproductions of our vintage footage are:

BonoLabs

9215 51st Ave., Suite 11
College Park MD 20740
archives@bonolabs.com
www.bonolabs.com
240-813-2460

Colorlab

5708 Arundel Avenue
Rockville MD 20852
info@colorlab.com
www.colorlab.com
301-770-2128

Arrangements are in place for hand-carrying our films. Courier costs are charged to the patron. When you have made financial arrangements with the laboratory, please notify us so we can arrange for pickup. The film company will tell you the cost of conversion and the length of time it will take to complete the job.
